Staying Small

Puglia and Basilicata—the coastal heel and mountainous instep of the Italian boot—charm visitors with picturesque boutique hotels and spas.

While Italy is hardly new territory for the well-versed traveler, there remain lesser-known regions rich with art and architecture, UNESCO World Heritage Sites, wellness services, and fresh interpretations of regional cuisine. Rome-based Access Italy (accessitaly.com/en), a family-owned and -operated tour company, has been running highly curated bespoke tours throughout Italy for 40 years and recommends these four stays off the beaten track.

Ostuni Art Resort

For travelers romanticizing about what it's like to wake in a historic trullo, there is no chicer option than here. The exclusive-use property features five authentic trulli, restored by a Roman architect and a real estate developer, brothers Giorgio and Giulio Angella, that together house up to 16 guests. Some are connected to the modern main house, a setup that provides plenty of room for parties to spread out indoors and out. The lush grounds are planted with olive groves, almond trees, and flowering grasslands. Find aromatic plants surrounding the pool and a fragrant herb and vegetable garden that the chef harvests for making pizzas in the outdoor oven. Through the property, enjoy an impressive display of contemporary art. The Angella brothers collect works by young, aspiring artists from Italy and abroad.
